The image shows a 3D graph with the y-axis labeled "collector current (nA)" and the x-axis labeled "collector number." The z-axis is not labeled but appears to represent a voltage range from 0 to 100, possibly "retarding voltage (−V)." The graph illustrates the relationship between collector current and collector number across various retardation voltages.